

Center for Hellenic Studies, Harvard University

Fellowship in Comparative Cultural Studies in Greece

Harvard Summer Program in Nafplio and Thessaloniki (Greece) – Humanities, 2019

Harvard's Center for Hellenic Studies (CHS) is pleased to offer two fellowships to junior faculty members (Adjunct Lecturers, Lecturers or Assistant Professors) and Laboratory Teaching Staff (“ΕΔΙΠ”) of Greek Universities (Schools of Humanities and Social Sciences) to join the Harvard Summer Program in Nafplio and Thessaloniki (Greece) - Humanities.

The Harvard Summer Program in Nafplio and Thessaloniki (Greece) - Humanities is one of the oldest and most successful Harvard summer study abroad programs. Divided between the seaside town of Nafplio and the city of Thessaloniki, it recently completed its seventeenth year. Founded in 2002 by a team of Harvard-trained scholars in the humanities, and having as academic directors Harvard professors Dimiter Angelov and Gregory Nagy, the program focuses on “Migrations and Boundaries: Reconceptualizing Mobility in the Eastern Mediterranean and Beyond”.

The fellowships aim to attract applicants with an academic background strongly related to the disciplines of Humanities and/or Social Sciences. CHS gives preference to those whose application and cover letter suggest that they would be comfortable working in an intimate, international, multilingual community of scholars. Former experience in similar academic programs/activities in Greece or abroad will be taken into consideration.

The fellowship includes:

- Year-long appointment as CHS Fellow in Comparative Cultural Studies in Greece.
- Year-long access to all Harvard electronic resources. The fellows will receive an ID and HarvardKey to have access to all digital libraries, available through the Harvard University library system.
- A week-long stay in Nafplio or in Thessaloniki in July 2019 (dates to be determined). The two fellows will join the summer program and interact with the students and the faculty. They will attend all seminars taught during that week and address a lecture to the students on their respective fields of interest. The Center covers accommodation, transportation (up to 100€), breakfast and dinner, during the fellow's stay with the summer program, and offers a stipend (300€) for any additional expenses.

All prospective applicants must submit the following (all documents in English) by midnight February 17th, 2019:

- A full CV
- A letter of intent, explaining why they should join the program
- A short summary of the lecture to be addressed to the students
- One letter of reference (also in English), which must be received by Wednesday, February 20, 2019. The letter must highlight, among others, the applicant's social skills and ability to interact strongly in a rigorous, multi-cultural environment.

All material must be submitted electronically, under the following link: <https://wp.chs.harvard.edu/chs-forms/application-chs-ccs-fellowships/>

After the deadline expires, the committee (consisting of CHS and CCS faculty) will evaluate all applications, proceed with interviews, and select the fellows. CHS might contact applicants for additional information during the selection process.

Harvard Summer Program in Nafplio and Thessaloniki, Greece - Humanities

Summer 2019 (June 29 – August 4)

The Harvard Summer Program in Nafplio and Thessaloniki, Greece – Humanities is one of the oldest and most successful Harvard study-abroad programs. The Humanities seminar is fundamentally interdisciplinary, combining historical, literary, philosophical, sociological and linguistic approaches to cultural exchange. The pedagogical model is interactive and research-driven, with several faculty members and students exchanging ideas around the seminar table, making it a real laboratory for comparative and collaborative thinking. The program’s cross-cultural focus is matched by the diversity of its participants. Since the summer of 2002, when it was launched, a total of over 310 students from the four corners of the world have come to Greece, for an intensive five-week course on comparative cultural studies.

The program lasts five weeks, the first four of which are devoted to seminar classes. The program meets twice daily, for two hour-sessions, Monday to Thursday. The curriculum consists of eight interrelated week-long classes that provide a diachronic and comparative approach to cross-cultural exchange. At the end of every week, students submit a response paper for each of the two classes they have attended. Weekend excursions take the participants to some of the most important archaeological and historical sites of Greece. The fifth week is devoted to research and the writing of the final paper.

The program receives generous support from the Center for Hellenic Studies, Harvard University. This support covers several aspects of the program. One such vital contribution are the fellowships that the Center awards to junior faculty members, adjunct lecturers and Laboratory Teaching Staff (“ΕΔΙΠ”) serving in Greek universities, which will allow the fellows to interact with colleagues and students from all over the world.

For more information about the program, please visit:

<https://www.summer.harvard.edu/study-abroad/nafplio-thessaloniki-greece-humanities>

<https://chs.harvard.edu/hss-humanities>

<https://chs.harvard.edu/chscsfellowships>

For questions, please contact Mr. Evangelos Katsarelis, Programs & Events Manager, Center for Hellenic Studies (Greece), Harvard University at ekatsarelis@chs.harvard.edu or 27520 47030 (ext. 2).